The PartnerPlus recruitment model sits in between the standardized contingent offering and the traditional high-end retained search model, moving away from the outdated practices of agencies (and companies) trawling generalized job boards that are not industry specific.

Instead, we want to build a strong relationship with our partners, collaborating with them to navigate the selection process by drawing on our experience, knowledge, and unique market intelligence. Our subject matter experts take the time to understand the role and appreciate the culture. Through this, we ensure we hire the right person, rather than the most available.
